New York Times Sociology Article

If you want to write on this document you need to open it, click file in the upper left part of your screen, click on “ make a copy “, name it whatever you like, and then share it back to me at jhunter@thetomorrowcenter.org

The New York Times is a famous, trustworthy newspaper that keeps a lot of its articles online for free.

Google “ New York Times “ sociology and click on the first link, or just go here: <https://www.nytimes.com/topic/subject/sociology>

Start scrolling and choose any article you’d like.

Once you find your article give it a read and do the following:

- Create a summary that is at least five good sentences.
- Tell me one of the opinions that is expressed or brought up by the article and let me know what you think about it in at least three complete sentences.
- Pretend for a second that you’re a teacher creating a test or a quiz about this article. What are three questions that you could put on the quiz?

Send any finished work or questions to me at jhunter@thetomorrowcenter.org. If this is a snow day I’ll probably just be sitting around my house watching Netflix and can lend a hand.
